Submission to the 4th United Nations Universal Periodic Review of China

— Protection of Rights to Equal Access to Healthcare

July 2023

1. Since the Human Rights Council conducted the third round of Universal Periodic Review (UPR) of China in 2018, the NSCF has witnessed significant achievements and progress have been made in healthcare service by the Chinese government under the concept of “life first and people fist”, hundreds of innovative drugs have been included into the essential medicine lists and covered by social medical insurance scheme, access to healthcare has been greatly increased. NSCF greatly affirms and appreciates the reforms and policies to act on Recommendations (28.231-28.233) regarding further minimizing the gaps between the east and the west, urban and rural areas, and equalizing public service resources.

2. The NSCF hopes to see more cost-effective new medicines could be included into essential medicines lists and covered by National Healthcare Security Scheme by Health Technology Assessment optimization.
3. The NSCF hopes to see Chinese government makes good education arrangements for the children with server or serious diseases like cancer. These children will have to be in hospitalization in long term of period. The needs of out of school education from the children and their parents could be well dressed by the cooperation between government and non-profit organizations, as well as other social resource.
4. The NSCF hopes to see Chinese government allocate more resource to scale up palliative care services in township and community level health facilities and optimize the management of painkillers, like opioids, in order to improve the quality of cancer patients at the end of life.
5. The NSCF hopes to see the Expanded Immunization Program in China entitle more vaccines, like Pneumococcal vaccine, and to reach greater progress in Pneumonia and Tuberculosis control and prevention.
6. The NSCF hopes to see that Chinese government fully take advantage of Doha Declaration to increase access to life-saving medicines with compulsory license.
